VENUE: BELFAST CITY HALL

DATE: TUESDAY 6TH JANUARY

TIME: 9 p.m start

Tuesday's Child is a Belfast-based children's charity dedicated to bringing hope and justice to vulnerable children in war-torn countries. Our vision is that all children may live and grow to their fullest potential, just like you and I.

The world often forgets to listen to what children have to say. Just Like You and I, the world speaks for children and stifles their voices. Tuesday's Child works with children in both Israel and Palestine, where currently little voices are being drowned out and tragically silenced by war. Tuesday's Child is heartbroken for their plight and, today, on the feast of the Epiphany, it cries out to the Baby in the manger to bring His peace to them and an end to this tragic war.

Written by Belfast singer-songwriter, Olive Kayes, Just Like You and I is dedicated to the plight of all children caught in war. The song is released as a digital single on our website (www.tuesdayschild.org.uk) for download today for whatever price you wish to pay. All proceeds will go to helping children in both Palestine and Israel.

The song will be performed live at the Belfast City Hall after our prayer vigil tonight. The song lyrics are on the charity website. We ask those attending, to bring a copy of the lyrics with them and join in our song for peace and justice. We hope that children and young people will sing out and let their voices be heard on behalf of children and young people who are victims of war around the world.

Ends./
